The band struck up a jingling melody of popular airs, and in less than tim minutes the bread, steep approach to the Treasury building was covered with human beings. The World's Columbus special says:
Governor Hoadly returned this morning from a campaigning trip, and his report is of the most sanguine character. He says that, in the first place, the State has been growing steadily Democratic for more than four years, and it is but reasonable to expect that this unassisted growth will insure a triumph for his party. He refers to the fact that although four years ago Ohio gave Garfield 35,000 majority, and although the Republicans declare that they have lost but little of the German vote and have gained much of the Irish vote, yet the most extravagant Republican claim at present is but 10,000 majority; this, too, in spite of the fact that Blaine has been for three weeks hippodroming through the State and in a manner without precedent using his personal endeavor to whoop up the fanguishing Republican enthusnasm, and in spite of the fact that Republican money is being poured into the State as it never has been before, and in spite of the fact that Commissioner Dudley and an immense force of Federal employe's whom the general publican employe's whom the general publicaner of the properties and inspite of the fact that Republican money is being noured into the State as it never has been before, and in spite of the fact that Commissioner Dudley and an immense force of Federal employe's whom the general publicaner of the fact that Republican force of Federal employe's whom the general publicaner of the fact that Republican force of Federal employe's whom the general publicaner of the fact that Republican force of Federal employe's whom the general publicaner of the fact that Republican force of Federal employe's whom the general publicaner of the fact that Republican force of Federal employe's whom the general publicaner of the fact that Republicaners of the fact that in the fact that Republican money is being poured into the State as it never has been before, and in spite of the fact that Commissioner Dudiey and an immense force of Federal employes whom the general public pay for services in the departments at Washington are here under full pay working day and might for Republican success. Not only is Governor Hoadily sontified for Democratic victory, but he says he will not be at all surprised to see the majority reach 15,000. He thinks that Mr. Blaine's canvass of the State has been without any material results, for this reason, if for none of their, that the route was very poorly laid out, more consideration being given to convenience of travel than to the location of these classes of people who could be held or won over to the party by that character of demonstration. For instance, instead of wasting his time in the Western Reserve, where the defection has been inconsiderable, Mr. Blaine should, the Governor thinks, have canvassed such regions as the counties of Meigs and Gallia, where the disaffection really exists, and where, if he has the magnetism elaimed for him, he might have been able to cure it. As to the Governor Hoadily estimates that fully six-sevenths of the Governor Hoadily estimates that fully six-sevenths of the Governor Hoadily says he has yet to find the evidence to support the Republican claims, and calls attention to the fact that the Irish names mentioned in proof of defection are very few. He estimates that the large retent. As to the Irish were strong. The St. John vote to the hinks will not be nearly so large as is claimed for the letter to do so the Republican claims, and calls attention to the fact that the Irish names mentioned in proof of defection are very few. He estimates that would be a perfect route. The factor in the coming contest which is hardest to gauge is, he says, the reserve power.

His case is such an obstinate one and his age is so great that he cannot hope for absolute cure; but he writes from Richland that he has used three bottles of Brown's Iron Bitters, and adds: "I have felt more reilef than from anything I have ever used." He desires an additional supply of this great family medicine in order to make further trial.
